

1. One of the leading cognitive and psychological anthropologist who was professor at Duke University and died 2019, Naomi
2. First and famous work of Frantz Fanon, french psychiatrist and pioneer of decolonization: Peau noire, masques
3. 2019, the American Psychological Association published the first-ever guidelines for practice with men and boys, following research that not only states male dominance in professional and political positions, but also in crime rates - this phenomenon is also referred to as [x] masculinity
4. Discipline, movement, or worldview that describes experience as product of the intentional, living body
5. Phenomenological/ (social, cognitivist) psychological concept that pronounces the mutual affection of and the inextricable connection between mind and body/ bodily practice
6. international manual for the classification of mental and behavioral disorders published by the WHO (abbr.)
7. Publishing institution of the DSM-5 (abbr.)
8. One of the main approaches of cognitivist psychology
9. One of the prominent emotions named in basic-emotion-approaches
10. Etymology of feeling and the german word Gefühl (Old High German)
11. One difference between the definition of feeling and affect in the anthropology of emotion
12. Carl Jung (Swiss psychiatrist and psychoanalyst) added illustrations of his self-analysis in the form of a [x] in his red leathered book
13. During a famous study from 2010, functional magnetic resonance imaging coincidentally measured significant increases in "activation" in the brain and spinal cord of a dead fish - The study provoked inquiry in the misinterpretation of brain imaging data. What kind of fish was it?
14. Founder of the critical psychology in Berlin
15. Current within biology that deals with the question if environmental factors can cause functionally relevant changes to the genome that are heritable
16. Individual state of mind that is referred to by the refrigerator-light-problem
17. In phenomenology: German word for the living body
18. Intentional and relational state of the body, referred to by the "taming-by-naming"-approach
19. Popular theory by Freud on children's feelings of rivalry and desire towards their parents during a special episode in childhood - [x] complex
20. Type of motivation that's neither intrinsic, nor extrinsic
21. According to a study of Julia Shaw, 70 percent of the participants admitted a crime that they didn't actually have committed, due to memory manipulation - which crime was it?
22. Part of the brain that mediates stimuli and affects to the central nervous system and is responsible for emotional reactions as aggression, fear, anxiety, etc.

